

WONDROUS JOURNEY'S END

As a culmination of my concert performances, I am releasing my final concert (jazz/blues/gospel) recorded LIVE on March 11, 2007 in the Grand Ballroom of the Sainte Claire Hotel in San Jose. The CD is appropriately called "Just Enough for Me" because what I've accomplished may not be enough in some folks eyes, but it's "Just Enough for Me." The following link is to audio clips of the upcoming CD.

<http://www.joycerandolph.com/audio.htm>

While still a high school English teacher, I had dreamt to sing at a beautiful hotel one day, to have music that I had written played throughout the country on the radio, and to open my own music school when I retired from public school teaching. I have lived to see those dreams come to fruition and am unspeakably thankful.

Now I welcome a more quiescent and reflective time in which I hope to read, to learn more classical works at the piano for my own pleasure, to enroll in classes in art and history, and to pen a book of my life, and to study the harp. I've attached below a link to my bio for those who are unfamiliar.

<http://www.joycerandolph.com/bio.htm>

Here is a link to my "press" page. The Mercury News was most generous in its coverage of my personal journey. They traced my debut album in 1995 in a feature article, did a follow-up feature article in 2004, and then touted my final concert as one of those "not to be missed" in 2007. (Mercury News Dec. 31, 2006). This final concert IS the CD entitled "Just Enough Me."

<http://www.joycerandolph.com/press.htm>

My greatest thrill was to see my 2004 album "Just a Little Blue" played with regularity on WBGO in the #1 media market, New York City. To know they liked the song which I wrote, "Just a Little Blue" was the most gratifying of all artistic validations for me. The link below is to WBGO's record of play for me and my songs.

<http://www.wbgo.org/dynamic/search/playlist.asp?searchStr=Joyce+Randolph&offset=0>